DR. SHELLY MEYERS came to Stockton as Assistant Professor of Education in 2008. Dr. Meyers has taught a wide range of education and general studies courses, specializing in graduate and undergraduate topics pertaining to special education and learning disabilities. Over the past several years Dr. Meyers has taught several G courses, and has developed a service-learning freshman seminar course. She has also traveled with freshmen to SOAR every year since arriving at Stockton, and enjoys collaborating with the FRST program. Highlights of Dr. Meyers’ scholarly activities include articles and conference papers about special education and adaptive technology at both national and international meetings and in several professional journals. Dr. Meyers is currently working on several related research projects, both independently and in collaboration with her colleagues. Dr. Meyers has served on Faculty Senate, has chaired the Academic Policies Committee, and has served as a board member of the Arc of Atlantic County. She is currently MAED Graduate Program Sub-Coordinator for Special Education. Dr. Meyers has been mentoring Chelsea Tracy-Bronson in the School of Education.

About mentoring, Dr. Meyers says: one of the greatest joys in academic life is the opportunity to work with colleagues who may have transitioned from another career to this one, or who may be just starting out on their first career. No matter what their previous experiences, coming to Stockton will become one of the best decisions they’ve ever made as professionals, and I’m honored to be a part of that realization, offering whatever support, encouragement, advice or collaboration best matches a junior colleague’s needs.
