Galloway Township, NJ- The Stockton Center on Successful Aging (SCOSA) at The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey will host a series of 12 free classes for senior adults, ages 55 and older, beginning on Thursday, February 25, 2010 at three locations in Atlantic County. The goal of the program, presented by Money Management International (MMI) – a nonprofit, credit counseling agency - is to increase knowledge in the areas of spending, avoiding identity theft, preparing for homeownership, and creating wealth.

David Burdick, Ph.D., Director of the Stockton Center on Successful Aging, noted that “planning for one’s financial future is a core component of the successful aging initiatives sponsored by the Center and we’re thrilled to collaborate with Money Management International to bring this important program to our region.”

“Due to the recent economic downturn, people are becoming more and more interested in how to make their dollars stretch a little farther,” said Maura Attardi, Regional Director of Education, Development, and Community Relations for Money Management International. “These classes will be a unique opportunity for individuals and families to make it through these tough economic times and come out the other side more financially savvy.”
