Galloway Township, NJ - Students visiting the Jersey Shore as well as students enrolled at Stockton University can take advantage of reduced tuition rates this summer by taking at least one undergraduate course at the new Stockton-Island Campus in Atlantic City.

The Board of Trustees approved a resolution making undergraduates eligible for flat-rate summer tuition as long as one of the courses they take is in Atlantic City. The board said it wanted to promote the new Island Campus on the Boardwalk and attract both residents and visitors to enroll in summer classes there and at Stockton's other locations.

Under the plan, one four-credit course will cost $1537.04 in tuition and fees and students can take three four-credit courses for the price of two at $3,074.08 in tuition and fees. Each additional four-credit course would be $1537.04. There is a $35 transportation and safety fee per semester for summer courses. Planning is underway to provide limited summer sessions at the Island Campus, with more academic programs to begin in the fall.

In addition, more than 305 summer courses - 127 of them offered totally online - will be offered at the Galloway main campus and the Manahawkin and Hammonton instructional sites.

Stockton's standard flat-rate tuition program also enables full-time students to take between 12 and 20 credits and pay the same rate. Students who take 20 credits can graduate sooner and potentially save thousands of dollars in the cost of classes and housing or commuting.

In other action, the trustees authorized notification of the New Jersey Presidents Council, which represents the state's public, private, religious and community colleges and universities, and the Office of the Secretary of Higher Education about a proposed doctoral degree in organizational leadership in the School of Education. After the necessary approvals are obtained, the program is expected to be offered at the Island Campus in 2016, bringing Stockton's total number of graduate programs to 14.

Charles Ingram, vice president for Administration and Finance, reported that Stockton Affiliated Services, Inc. (SASI) has contributed over $9,591,000 in payments to Stockton since its inception in July 2008.

SASI, a non-profit auxiliary organization, provides many services university community such as off- campus housing rentals for graduate students, faculty and staff; transportation and safety services; dining services; and the campus bookstore.
