Dr. Harvey Kesselman, Provost and Executive Vice President of The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey has been selected to participate on a national panel of the American Council on Education (ACE) to discuss the future of higher education in America.

The focus group will meet in Philadelphia later this month to help shape the organization’s advocacy on such key issues as:

- The future and shape of higher education enterprise
- Evolving role of government in higher education
- The changing state of college and university fiscal issues
- A changing workforce’s needs regarding curriculum development and educational delivery
- Technology’s evolving role in education, student success and business productivity

“It is an honor to have been selected to participate on such a prestigious panel,” said Dr. Kesselman, a resident of Mays Landing. “I am looking forward to representing Stockton, exchanging ideas and contributing to ACE’s agenda for the betterment of higher education in the United States.”
