Closing Keynote: Home as a Clinical Microsystem and Information Hub

Marc Pierson, MD
Regional Vice President
Clinical Information and Special Projects
Whatcom Region/St. Joseph Hospital

Consumer participation in RHIOs has been identified as a key element to a RHIO’s success. In general, consumers have been left out of the development of RHIOs. However, the push for patient involvement and advocacy has increased with the advent of personal health records and other initiatives designed to engage consumers in the RHIO process.

- Identify the benefits and outcomes of involving patients in RHIOs
- Describe Patient Involvement Strategies
- Discuss Patient Advocacy in RHIOs
Community-based HIT for a System of Chronic Care

Patients' Homes

@ The Center

Pursuing Perfection
Whatcom County

IOM Chasm Report

Community
the Necessary Domain for Chronic Care
Organize Your Community
Don't Confuse Chronic Care with Acute Care

Patients as Designers

Patients (and their networks) as Primary Providers
Virtual Care Teams
Beyond only Professionals

Integrate
Community-Based
Personal Health Records

Community-wide Electronic Prescribing—including the patients
Activated Patients
Better for Everyone

When Helping Could Hurt
Organizational Portals vs.
PHR?

RHIOs?
BMRs or PHRS first?
Basic Starter RHIO: PHR with eRx, Labs, Images, Diagnoses

Organizations as Subsystems of Communities

Who is "We"? Where is "Home"?

My Recommended Links
- http://www.wwpp.org/users/0000002/
- www.sharedcareplan.org
- www.wwpp.org
- www.connectingforhealth.org/resources/wg_eis_final_report_0704.pdf
- http://www.wwpp.org/media/la/Bonnie WWPP2/TestVid.html