Culturally Competent Practices with Latino Clients & Families: Building on Evidence Based Principles

February 23, 2012

4:30 pm - 7:00 pm

The Shores of Wesley Manor, 2201 Bay Avenue, Ocean City, NJ

The Stockton Center on Successful Aging is Pleased to Present:

Dr. Merydawilda Colon

Associate Professor of Social Work and Coordinator of Stockton's Social Work Program

The seminar, designed for professionals, para-professionals, and other caregivers who work with older adults is free of charge and includes a complimentary dinner. Upon completion, participants will receive 2 CEs for social workers, marriage & family therapists, and licensed professional counselors.

This presentation highlights empirically-based principles for culturally competent practice with Latinos. After attending this seminar, participants will be able to verbalize and apply empirically-based principles for culturally competent practice with Latinos, using a strengths perspective approach and tools such as the culturagram to assess Latino families in terms of acculturation and family functioning (i.e. family stress and conflict areas). Also, participants will be able to use solution-focused questions in their assessment with Latino consumers.

The Shores at Wesley Manor, a senior care community was completely rebuilt and renovated in 2006. With a stable record of high marks from the NJ DHSS, The Shores creates an environment that enhances a person's dignity, choice, independence, stability, and privacy. It matches professional services with the needs of an individual rather than a "one size fits all" approach. This complements the outstanding team of professional caregivers, which enhance the quality of life for our residents. Services includes residential living, assisted living, memory support, respite and hospice care. For those needing a nursing home level of care, skilled nursing is also available.
