Atlantic City Ballet’s “A Midsummer Night’s Dream” follows Shakespeare’s comic story line of a mischievous fairy as he leads two pairs of young lovers on a wild and merry chase through the woods outside of Athens. Throw in feuding fairies and a troupe of bumbling actors, and you’ve got a sparkling comedy with something for everyone!

Phyllis Papa, founding director of the Atlantic City Ballet, first created “Midsummer” in 1999 as a multi-disciplinary piece with actors, singers, and dancers. In 2006, Papa reworked “Midsummer” into a full-length ballet that has delighted audiences since its premiere.
