Galloway Township, NJ- Stockton College's CSI Forensics Summer Camp is the only residential summer camp of its kind in the area. The program is unique in many ways. Highly trained staff members help to connect CSI campers with world-class experts, informing them of potential career choices with the police, FBI, corrections, and in fields like criminal justice, forensic psychology, and the law. The program combines learning experiences with hands-on activities and course-specific off-campus field trips, like fascinating excursions to the county jail, medical examiner's office, and the Federal Air Marshal training facility.

The 2010 Stockton CSI forensics summer camp was featured in several news stories presented by major media outlets:

NBC's The Today Show (August 13, 2010) The weekend host of The Today Show, Amy Robach, discussed the camp with Matt Lauer during the segment.
