Galloway, NJ - Stockton University's Kramer Hall is partnering with the AtlantiCare Physician Group to host a Lunch and Learn event on Wednesday, March 9, from 12-1 p.m. with Viren Vankawala, M.D., a board-certified cardiologist who will be discussing symptoms and tips to prevent heart disease.

Dr. Vankawala is certified in seven areas of medical specialties including cardiovascular diseases, internal medicine, echocardiography, nuclear cardiology, cardiac CT, vascular ultrasound and pacing and defibrillation.

He has been a member of medical staff at AtlantiCare Regional Medical Center since 2006. He specializes in clinical cardiology, interpreting non-invasive studies including echocardiography, nuclear stress tests and vascular ultrasound studies. In addition, he implants cardiac devices including pacemakers and implantable loop recorders.

Dr. Vankawala sees patients at several AtlantiCare locations, including Galloway, Egg Harbor Township and Hammonton, N.J.

The free public event will be held at Kramer Hall, Stockton University's instructional site at 30 Front St. in downtown Hammonton, N.J.

If interested in attending this Lunch and Learn event, please e-mail Ginna Petrillo at ginna.petrillo@stockton.edu to reserve your seat.
