Galloway, N.J. - Students interested in transferring to Stockton University are invited to attend Transfer Night on Tuesday, June 7 from 6 – 8:30 p.m. beginning in the Campus Center on the main campus, 101 Vera King Farris Drive, Galloway, N.J.

The evening, dedicated to transfer students still choosing their next educational experience, will offer an opportunity to experience the energy and excitement of the university campus in the Pinelands National Reserve first-hand. Stockton is among the Top 15 public Regional Universities of the North, ranked at #12 by U.S. News & World Report.

Prospective students can meet with and have their questions answered by the experts:

- Academic advisors who can provide an on-the-spot informal evaluation of transfer credits;
- Career Center counselors;
- Admissions and Financial Aid representatives,
- Representatives of academic majors for a Q & A.

Recent Stockton graduates endorse transferring:

“As a nontraditional commuter student, Stockton University was a natural choice after completing my associate's degree at Atlantic Cape,” said Richard Jeffries of Mays Landing, N.J., who graduated in May with a B.S. in Health Sciences. “It offered an easy transfer process and the varied course selections helped to prepare me for graduate school.” Jeffries is now part of Thomas Jefferson University’s inaugural entry-level Doctorate of Occupational Therapy program.

Sara Toscano, of Egg Harbor Township, N.J., earned her B.S. in Political Science in December 2015, after transferring from Rutgers-New Brunswick. “I chose to study at Stockton because I really valued how small the class sizes were after being at such a large university,” Toscano said. “I made so many connections and positive experiences at Stockton, but I was still challenging myself.” She will begin studies at American University Law School in the fall.

Stockton offers transfer students unique support, including first semester transfer seminars with courses that count toward their majors, but which are tailored to their needs.

“The seminars provide an encouraging environment in which transfer students can make the transition over the course of a semester, rather than a two- or three-hour orientation,” said Thomas Grites, assistant provost – Academic Support Services. “One survey showed that students who took the transfer seminars returned for the next semesters and have a strong overall graduation rate,” he said.
