Dr. Kesselman currently is working with the Monmouth-Ocean Educational Services Commission (MOESC) to develop a new online workshop for New Jersey high school guidance counselors which will provide pertinent information concerning college admissions practices, financial aid policies and programs, and NCAA Division I, II, and III academic and financial requirements. This new initiative will be available in the Fall of 2006.

Ms. Patricia Weeks, Director of the Southern Regional ETTC presented a pre-conference session for the 2006 Governor's Conference on Tourism which was held from April 5-7, 2006 at the Trump Plaza in Atlantic City. Ms. Weeks' session "Desktop Publishing for the Small Business" provided participants with marketing ideas as well as a hands-on opportunity to develop promotional materials for their businesses.

The SRI/ETTC hosted a conference with the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey's Traumatic Loss Coalitions for Youth on May 4, 2006 in the Alton Auditorium. PROJECT ABSTRACT

Applicant (Lead) Agency: The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey

NGO Title: Improving Teacher Quality Partnership

NGO #: 06 ER04 G03

To meet the Improving Teacher Quality Partnership overarching goal of improving student academic achievement, the Richard Stockton College of New Jersey intends to partner with two diverse school districts: Wildwood City Schools and the Somers Point School District. The project will provide teachers, administrators, paraprofessionals, and pre-service educators with a greater knowledge and understanding of mathematics content and pedagogy which are vital to student achievement in the New Jersey Core Curriculum Content Standards. Specific activities will include the delivery of customized professional development (CPD) workshops in mathematics to teachers and principals in K-8, in-class mentoring for novice and veteran teachers, specialized programming for pre-service students, professional development opportunities for paraprofessionals, professional development in related technology, and alignment of all professional development with the New Jersey Core Curriculum Content Standards.

The project will be implemented through three distinct, yet inherently connected entities at Stockton College. The Southern Regional Institute (SRI) for Professional Development, the Southern Regional Educational Technology Training Center (ETTC) and Stockton's Teacher Education Program (STEP) will seek to "enhance traditional teacher training" and provide customized professional development to meet the needs of both partner districts as well as pre-service students at the college.

The Customized Professional Development Model (CPD) will maintain sustained, high quality school-based activities over three years that will lead to improved student performance in the New Jersey Assessment of Skills and Knowledge for grades three, four, five, six, and seven and the Grade Eight Performance Assessment, and provide a strong focus on mathematics instruction in special education classrooms. The CPD model was developed in 2003 in response to the Improving Teacher Quality Partnership Grant and has evidenced and documented success for the past three years in the Buena Regional School District and Atlantic City School District.

This project is expandable across disciplines and can be replicated throughout the State.

June 14, 2006

Southern Regional Educational Technology Training Center

Memorandum of Understanding

For July 1, 2006 through June 30, 2007

The Educational Technology Training Centers were established by New Jersey Law [P.L.1996, c.129].

The mission of the Educational Technology Training Centers (ETTCs) is to provide ongoing, high quality professional development that is responsive to the educational technology training and curriculum integration needs of educators from all grade levels (K-12) in both public and non-public schools throughout the state. Training activities will be aligned with New Jersey's Core Curriculum Content Standards and pedagogies and instructional styles consistent with life-long learning and distance learning.

This Memorandum of Understanding seeks to clarify the roles, responsibilities and benefits for the Southern Regional Educational Technology Training Center (hereinafter "ETTC") and its lead agency, Richard Stockton College of New Jersey, (hereinafter "the lead agency") in collaboration with the Southern Regional ETTC Steering Committee and the member school districts of the Southern Regional ETTC Consortium.

If the ETTC program continues to focus on the above mission statement and the lead agency continues to support the ETTC in the manner described below in this MOU, then the ETTC will be approved or certified by the New Jersey Department of Education to continue as the designated ETTC for Atlantic County.

To be department approved, the ETTC program must continue to address the following components.

1. The Educational Technology Training Center (ETTC) name must continue to be used.
2. A "user-friendly" demonstration center must be maintained. The center should include computers, multimedia hardware, software, curriculum-related materials, access to distance learning, etc.; and should have signs designating it as the county ETTC.
3. A director/coordinator must be assigned to the program and be responsible for coordinating professional development, addressing needs for technical assistance and related activities at the ETTC. The director/coordinator must attend quarterly meetings as established by the department of education. No substantive portion of the scope of work may be subcontracted to an outside entity.
4. The primary target audience continues to be educators; however, workshops and other services may be provided to the larger learning community of parents, families, local businesses, community members, libraries, and other entities.
5. Evaluation data about educators participating in ETTC workshops and other training events must be electronically submitted quarterly to the Office of Educational and

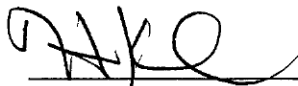

Informational Technology. (Such information may include number of workshops held, number of participants, and evaluation of workshops by educators.)

6. The ETTC web site must be maintained with training opportunities updated regularly. (The department's web site will link to the ETTC web site.)

Department approved ETTCs will enjoy the following benefits:

- Eligible for targeted state and federal funding opportunities as the department approved county ETTC;
- Direct assistance from the department in identifying potential private sector partnerships;
- Direct communication maintained with the department on key issues via e-mail, web site links and regularly scheduled meetings to ensure that the ETTCs receive timely information concerning major educational initiatives and potential resources;
- Continued statewide and national recognition initiated and promoted by the department.

This memorandum of understanding must be renewed annually and requires the signature of the lead agency's representative (CEO for the Southern Regional Institute and ETTC) and the Chair of the ETTC Steering Committee to demonstrate commitment to the ETTC mission and program components. When this document is fully executed, the lead agency is eligible for future grants and activities targeted for the ETTC program, if the funding source for the future grant program allows awards to institutes of higher education.

Debt Management Policy

Procedure

Approved

Employees Covered

All College financing activities

Purpose

To establish a policy for arranging and approving financing transactions that will cause the College to become indebted or contingently obligated to an outside third party. Further, to provide a basis for the prudent use of debt to finance capital projects and facilitate the achievement of strategic objectives. There are practical limits to spending and to the incurrence of debt financing; debt is therefore a resource to be managed.

This policy will be reviewed at least annually to ensure financial and operational flexibility. Management will update the Board of Trustees with an overview of the financial health of the College when proposing additional debt financing.

Introduction

Debt financing allows the College to pay for capital assets over a period of time. This is the best practice for certain types of capital investments when within appropriate limitations and at favorable rates of interest. Debt financing is desirable when borrowing rates are below expected rates of return on investments or when the College invests in capital assets that provide investment returns or cost savings that are greater than the cost of borrowing. Decisions regarding the use of financial leverage should depend on the fiscal health of the College and the effect of today's decisions on future costs of capital.

Authority

The Board of Trustees upon the advice of the President and the Vice President for Administration and Finance. The Vice President for Administration and Finance or designee will manage all funding sources, including debt, for capital projects authorized by the Board.

Criteria for Issuing Debt

The priority of a certain project, the expected use of a facility, and the likelihood that a combination of philanthropy and future budget allocations can fund a portion of the cost of a project are significant factors in determining where issuing debt is the appropriate financing vehicle for the project. Revenue producing assets such as parking facilities and residence halls are prime candidates for debt financing due to their ability to help service the debt. Planned major debt issuance via tax-exempt bonds should relate in timing and amounts to the adopted Master Plan. Projects will be prioritized if they meet one or more of the following:

- Risk Reduction Test: The project is considered critical in terms of life/safety or is necessary to comply with environmental or legal standards.
- Core Mission: The project ties to the core mission or an academic program.
- Prudence: The project is held to be essential for maintenance and upkeep at agreed-upon levels.
- Self-sufficiency: The project can generate significant revenues to cover the capital and associated costs.
- Savings: Debt issuance can provide for budgetary savings.

Application

As a public college Stockton can issue tax-exempt debt through the New Jersey Educational Facilities Authority (EFA); this type of financing will in most cases be the lowest cost funding source for capital projects.

- To maintain access to capital funding the College will issue debt to fund priorities that have been approved by the Board of Trustees
- The credit rating of the College will be actively managed to ensure that the College can continue to issue debt and finance capital projects at favorable interest rates.
- Debt will be managed on a portfolio, rather than a transactional or project-specific basis. Management's continuing objective of incurring the lowest achievable long-term risk-adjusted cost of capital will be balanced with appropriately limiting exposure to market shifts within acceptable budgetary parameters.
- Working capital requirements, debt management, and the investment of cash should be viewed comprehensively in order to optimize overall funding and investment return strategies.

The structure of any individual transaction (maturity, interest rate, use of derivative products, and other financing structuring) will be based upon overall needs to ensure that the long-term costs are minimized and that overall risk does not exceed acceptable levels.

Debt will be structured to meet the College's long-term goals and therefore each project being financed will be required to provide a comprehensive business plan, including the source of repayment for the debt and appropriate and realistic repayment terms. The repayment terms will require that the loan term is no greater than the expected useful life of the asset being financed.

Financial Ratios

Financial discipline is a critical component of long-term debt management and therefore a limited number of ratios and targets should be established. These ratios will be monitored and reported on as strategic initiatives evolve. This policy establishes guidelines to measure the total amount of debt when compared to College balance sheet resources and the annual operating budget.

- Debt Burden Ratio: To maintain long-term operating flexibility this ratio measure the College's ability to repay debt service associated with all outstanding debt and the impact on the overall budget and includes all activities of the College.

$$\frac{\text{ANNUAL DEBT SERVICE}}{\text{TOTAL EXPENSES}} < .09$$

Aggregated operating expenses are stable and better reflect the operating base of the College. The guideline for this ratio is not to be greater than .09.

- Viability Ratio: This ratio measures financial health by the availability of liquid and expendable net assets compared to aggregate debt. This policy establishes a debt limit of .60 to ensure sufficient balance sheet strength.

$$\frac{\text{TOTAL UNRESTRICTED \& TEMPORARILY RESTRICTED NET ASSTS- NET INVESTMENT IN PLANT}}{\text{AGGREGATED DEBT}} > .60$$

To remain competitive and retain flexibility to invest in future strategic initiatives, the College will maintain a ratio of no less than .60.

In addition to the ratios described above, College management will establish and track additional ratios to enhance debt management.

Funding Sources

Each funding source available to the College has specific benefits, risks, and costs. All potential funding will be reviewed within the context of this policy and the overall portfolio to ensure that any financial product or structure is consistent with College initiatives. Most importantly any financing structure must be fully understood as it relates to the potential risks and benefits and how they impact College creditworthiness and debt capacity.

- Tax Exempt Debt: The College's debt portfolio will be managed to maximize the utilization of tax exempt debt whenever possible. Depending on prevailing market conditions, opportunities, budgetary constraints, the useful life of the project being funded, and other considerations management should consider maximizing the external maturity of any tax-exempt issue.
- Taxable Debt: Should the College's capital projects not qualify for tax-exempt financing, taxable debt should only be used in appropriate cases as it is generally a more expensive source of capital. The issuance of taxable debt will reduce the College's overall debt affordability due to higher associated interest expense.
- Commercial Paper: The College has not utilized this method of financing (both tax-exempt and taxable series). Commercial paper can provide substantial financial flexibility to the College including the ability to manage and optimize cash balances; provide an alternative to lease transactions and other purposes. At this time however the College is not contemplating the use of commercial paper but may explore this option in the future and will be subject to the ratios established by this debt policy.

- Derivative Products: Management recognizes that derivative products may enable more opportunistic and flexible management of the debt portfolio. Derivative products, including interest rate swaps, may be employed primarily to manage or hedge the College's interest rate exposure for a specific period of time. The College will utilize a framework to evaluate potential derivative instruments through consideration of its variable rate allocation, market and interest rate conditions, impact on future financing flexibility, and the compensation for assuming risks, or the costs for eliminating certain risks and exposure. In addition, the College will analyze and quantify the cost/benefit of any derivative instrument relative to achieving desirable long-term capital structure objectives. Under no circumstances will a derivative transaction be utilized that is not understood fully by management or that imposes inappropriate risk on the College. Risks include but are not limited to tax risk, interest rate risk, liquidity risk, counterparty credit risk, basis risk, and any other potential risks either imposed or removed through the execution of any transaction. In addition, management will consider and disclose the potential impact of any derivative product in the College's financial statements. Management will regularly report on the status and performance of its derivative products. Given the complexity associated with derivative products, they will be considered when conventional financing sources are relatively more expensive (e.g. exceed the portfolio blended interest rate), and can achieve desired financial objectives more efficiently or at a significantly lower risk-adjusted cost than traditional structures. Management is required to present any recommended derivative product to the Finance Committee, a subcommittee of the full Board.
- Other Financing Sources: The College recognizes that various types of financing activities may also impact the College's credit and are often more expensive than traditional debt structures. Therefore, all non-traditional financing structures including guarantees and third party debt can only be considered once the economic benefit and the likely impact on the College's debt capacity has been determined. Specifically, for any third-party or developer based financing, management will ensure the full credit impact of the structure is evaluated and quantified to the extent possible prior to execution and the analysis must be presented to the Finance Committee.

The College intends to optimize the portfolio of debt for the entire College rather than on a project-by-project basis, and takes into account the College's cash and investments. Therefore, management will make decisions regarding project prioritization, variable rate allocation, and financing structures within the context of the overall needs and circumstances of the College.

Variable Rate Debt

It is recognized that a degree of exposure to variable interest rates within the College's debt portfolio may be desirable in order to:

- take advantage of repayment/restructuring flexibility
- benefit from historically lower average interest costs; and
- diversify the debt portfolio; and
- provide a hedge to short-term working capital balances

Management will monitor overall interest rate exposure, analyze and quantify potential risk, and coordinate appropriate fixed/variable allocation strategies. The portfolio allocation to variable rate debt (potentially new issues and refunding) and the use of interest rate swaps and other derivative products recognizes the desire to manage interest rate risk; the amount of variable rate debt outstanding shall not exceed thirty-five percent (35%) of the College's outstanding debt. This limit is based on the College's desire to limit annual variances in its debt portfolio, provide sufficient structuring flexibility to management, keep the College variable rate allocation within acceptable external parameters, and utilize variable rate debt (and/or swaps) to optimize debt portfolio allocation and minimize costs.

$$\frac{\text{VARIABLE RATE EXPOSURE}}{\text{TOTAL LONG-TERM DEBT OUTSTANDING}} < .35$$

If and when commercial paper is utilized the College will exclude from this calculation project-related commercial paper used in advance of expected long-term financing since it is used for interim purposes and should not be included in the College's desired long-term variable rate allocation calculation. The College recognizes that during some periods it may be desirable to maintain a lower variable-rate allocation within its 35% limit, depending on prevailing long-term rates and/or opportunities in the short-term market.

To mitigate liquidity and interest rate risk, the Vice President for Administration and Finance or designee upon the approval of the Investment Committee will invest the appropriate level of working capital funds in accordance with the Investment Policy to hedge debt interest rate exposure. The intent is not to provide a "perfect hedge" but rather to provide "reasonable" cushion to allow the College to weather unforeseen market conditions.

Refinancing of Existing Fixed Rate Debt

The College should continually monitor the markets for opportunities to refinance eligible existing fixed rate debt for savings. The College should refund fixed rate bonds in advance of their optional redemption date only if present value savings exceed 3% of the par amount to be refunded. If fixed rate bonds are within 90 days of their optional redemption date Stockton should refinance the debt if present value savings are greater than 1% of par. Alternatively, the College could refinance the fixed rate bonds with variable rate bonds within 90 days of the redemption date in an effort to adjust the mixture of fixed and variable rate bonds in the debt portfolio.
