From: Bob D'Augustine

Subject: Action by President Saatkamp to Accept Transfer of Title to the Carnegie Library Building

On November 18, the Board of the Casino Reinvestment Development Authority (CRDA) approved the conveyance of the title to the Carnegie Library Building to Richard Stockton College of New Jersey. As you know, the College has had sole occupation and use of the Carnegie Building since 2004 in accordance with a lease agreement with CRDA, at a cost of $1.00 per year. As part of the agreement for transfer of title to the College, the College will undertake to continue using the facility for educational purposes.

Since it is advantageous to the College to have an educational presence in Atlantic City, acceptance of the transfer of title under the conditions proposed by the CRDA is clearly beneficial to the College.

Under the terms of a resolution approved by the College's Board at its September meeting, President Saatkamp is authorized to accept property without action by the Board of Trustees. The transfer of title to the Carnegie Building to the College falls within the framework of what that resolution authorized President Saatkamp to do. We need only report to the Board that this action is being taken.
