The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey

Stockton Coastal Collaborative

Math and Science Partnerships Program – July 1, 2013-June 30, 2016

Funded by the New Jersey Department of Education

The Stockton Coastal Collaborative is an interdisciplinary project between the School of Education and the School of Natural Sciences and Mathematics. It is designed to improve K-12 teachers' content knowledge and pedagogical practices in mathematics, to develop intra-district and inter-district professional learning communities, to assist teachers as they prepare every student with the 21st century readiness skills, and to support partner districts as they implement the Common Core State Standards (CCSS) in Mathematics.

Through a project team that includes Stockton College Mathematics and Education Faculty, staff of the Southern Regional Institute and ETTC, and educators from partner districts in Cape May and Cumberland Counties, a 3-year program of professional development will guide participating teachers through an exploration of topics that will increase their individual and collective abilities to improve student achievement.

Participating school districts include Wildwood Public Schools, a K-12 district whose Elementary and Middle Schools are both Title I and Focus Schools, Woodbine School District, a K-8 Title I School, Middle Township School District (K-12) and Commercial Township School District, a K-8 Title I District. Cumberland Regional High School and each of its K-8 sending districts including Hopewell Crest, Stow Creek, Greenwich, Deerfield (Focus), and Fairfield Township (Focus) will also participate. In Year Two, Millville Public Schools joined the project.

Although each partner district has identified professional development needs in mathematics, their locations and size often prevent their teachers from participating more fully in formal professional development activities outside of their own local in-service days, leaving few opportunities for professional collaboration which is considered to be a hallmark for successful implementation of the CCSS in Mathematics.

Sixty (60) teachers will participate in this 3-year project which will include an annual summer academy, inter-district professional development during the school year, onsite instructional coaching and opportunities for reflection with college faculty, online collaboration conducted in real-time as well as access to a virtual Professional Learning Community created for this initiative. Graduate-level courses will be available to those teachers who want to pursue specialization in middle school mathematics.

Principal Investigators: Dr. Chia-Lin Wu, Associate Professor of Mathematics, Ms. Patricia Weeks, Director of the Southern Regional Institute and ETTC.

THE RICHARD STOCKTON COLLEGE OF NEW JERSEY

May 28, 2014

To: Dr. Harvey Kesselman, Provost

CC: Jeanne Demarsico, Program Assistant - Grants Office
Dr. Emari Digiorgio, Executive Vice-President of the Stockton Federation of Teachers
Dr. Robert Gregg, Dean of General Studies

Subject: Career Development Committee Funds 2014-2015

Dear Provost Kesselman,

The Career Development Committee met on Tuesday May 27th and reviewed the files of sixteen applicants for funding. The committee discussed each applicant in detail and decided to award the following disbursement of the funding totaling $23,700. Our decisions were based on the applicant's post-tenure reviews, the strength of their proposals, and their relevance to developing pedagogy or supporting scholarship.

Tait Chirenje:	$3150	Establishment of internship program clearly beneficial to his career, and application clearly outlines the benefits to the students and the college.
Elizabeth Elmore	$ 250	Provided clear pedagogical rationale for the Livescribe pen; clear rationale for impact on teaching.
B. Steven Howard	$2100	Certifications, books, and travel are relevant to his scholarship.
Kelly Keenan	$2000	A very interesting and valuable project that could be significant to advancing her career; very specific rationale for the funding.
Matthew Landau	$1550	Ongoing project involving students doing important environmental work. Committee suggests he apply for funds meant for student research as well, as those would be appropriate.
David Lester	$ 500	Valid project following up on prior scholarship. Modest request with a clear benefit for his work.
Marissa Levy	$2350	Supports her efforts to maintain currency in her field for teaching and scholarship.
Maryann McLoughlin	$1000	Funding portion of request to support professional development related to her work in the Holocaust Resource Center. Proposal lacked clarity but the committee felt partial award was fair.
Shanthi Rajaraman	$2100	Very specific use of funds to support her teaching and scholarship. Committee particularly impressed with her idea for a textbook that is a paradigm shift in how organic chemistry is taught.

Brian Rogerson	$2300	Clear rationale for a project that advances his career goals and for a project that involves students in biology research.
Elizabeth Shobe	$3000	Project helps build her scholarly profile while also provides for a meaningful research experience for her students. Requested amount exceeded scope of CDC funding.
Allison Sinanan	$1900	Aligns with Essential Learning Outcomes for information literacy, and travel funds would support her scholarship by allowing her to present at a prestigious conference.
Amy Yingyi Situ-Liu	$1500	Clearly outlined project that supports a shift in her scholarly agenda and will inform the development of a capstone course for her program.

On behalf of the committee I would like to thank you for the opportunity to serve our colleagues from across the college, and respectfully submit these applicants for funding.

Sincerely,

Douglas M. Harvey, Associate Professor of Instructional Technology
