The Stockton College Assessment Literacy Exploration (SCALE) Project will conduct activities in Year Two that will increase participants' understanding of assessment practices including the development and use of assessment tools, the analysis of student data generated through these tools, and the introduction and use of strategies to change instructional practices based on the data collected through these instruments. Professional development will be supported by continuous interaction with onsite coaches who will observe and guide teachers as they implement these new tools and strategies. Participating teachers will create electronic portfolios that will be used for reflection and deeper understanding.

Teachers will be supported by their school leaders who will also participate in workshops designed to strengthen their own understanding of the important links between assessment and student achievement.
